Its advices show the improbability of an election on October 26 not only because of the success of the constitutionalist arms, but numerous illegalities in connection with the preliminary arrangements for an election. The dissolution of congress by force is plainly looked upon here as an unconstitutional act.

Mr. Hazen's report is a comprehensive review of the work done during the past fiscal year by the surveyor's office. It contains a number of rec ommendations for street and park improvements which the Commissioner indoubtedly will consider. Among the recommendations are the following: That another appropriation be re quested for the acquisition of small parks at the intersection of streets outside the limits of the original city of Washington. Congress appropriated $25,000 for this purpose last year. That the previous recommendation for the acquisition of Piney branch parkway be included in this year's Widening of Wisconsin Avenue.

That the Commissioners take some action looking toward the widening of Wisconsin avenue from its intersection with 37th street to the District line; for the widening of Georgia avenue from Florida avenue to the District line, and for the widening of Benning road from 15th street to Anacostia road. With respect to the Piney branch parkway project the surveyor states this land is increasing rapidly in value, and its use as a park is threatened by the encroachment of improvements. Inbe a loss to the District, he states, and streets proposed to be widened are the three principal suburban highways in too narrow for the heavily loaded farmers' teams coming into the city from Maryland, Mr. Hazen points out. There really never was a time when Plank was in danger. He went through the nine innings without once faltering and displayed even better form than in his previous contest with the master of them all, Mathewson. Inning after inning he mowed down the Giants, and it was not until the fifth that he allowed one of his opponents to reach the bases. It was in this inning that the Giants scored their lone tally and they really never breatened thereafter. In fact, but one nore man reached first and he died a moment later in a lightning double play, which ended all possible chance the liants may have had of again becoming With Mathewson it was different. He was not effective in the early innings and when his support wavered at critical stages he yielded enough runs to give the Athletics a lead from which they were never snaken. He gave a beautiful ex-hibition after the third inning, but the damage had been done and the game was
